TRANSPORTATION

BY LAND

Historically, Gaziantep was an important stop on the Silk Road. It is connected by road to Adana, Mersin and Antakya via Osmaniye, to Şanlıurfa, Diyarbakır and Mardin by the Birecik bridge, and to Aleppo in Syria via Kilis. The Gaziantep-İskenderun-Adana-Tarsus-Mersin-Pozantı TAG highway is now open. From Istanbul, the route to Gaziantep is via Ankara, Aksaray, Adana-Pozantı and Osmaniye. There are regular services from the Gaziantep Bus Station to the surrounding cities as well as Istanbul, Ankara and İzmir. Buses to the other cities and towns in the province also leave from the municipal bus terminals and the Kilis bus station on İnönü Caddesi. Transportation within the city is by bus, minibus and taxi.

Distances

TRANSPORTATIONBY LAND

Şırnak is accessible by road from everywhere in Turkey. The E-90 highway passes through Gaziantep, Şanlıurfa and Mardin, and reaches Şırnak via Cizre. The E-90 also links Turkey and Iraq. From Istanbul, there are two possible routes: the first takes you via Gaziantep, Şanlıurfa, Mardin, Kızıltepe, Nusaybin and Cizre, and the second via Kayseri, Malatya, Elazığ, Mardin, Nusaybin and Cizre. There is no bus station in Şırnak. Buses leave from in front of the company offices on Cumhuriyet Meydanı. Minibuses for Silopi and Cizre leave from Cizre Caddesi, while those for Uludere and Beytüşşebap leave from Uludere Caddesi. There are no local buses or minibuses in Şırnak. The only mode of local transportation is taxi.
